

"Ever since the word started to spread about The Durango Riot in 2007, this young four piece combo from Sweden has been hailed as the best upcoming rockphenomenon back home in Europe by both fans and critics.

Telemission, the bands already masterpiece-declared debute, contains a complete outrageous mix of rock n roll history's brightest hours.

Though the band was formed three years ago, the seed was planted way back before that. Members and childhoodfriends Fred (vocals/guitar), Jake (guitar) and Eric (drums) had been talking for long about starting a group that would sum up all their ideas and musical influences all the way from the 70's Detroit/New York sound, through The Clash-vibes, up to elements of bands like Queens of the Stone Age and Black Rebel Motorcycle Club.

The name by the way, is the result of one of modern times largest jailriots mixed together with theStanley Kubrick classic "A Clockwork Orange".

And the band's highly energetic liveshows is never that far away from becoming a riot. Thru a massive soundwall of the pounding drums, screaming guitars and pulsating basslines the Riot is an incredible looking punk-spitting experience designed to fit whatever stage they're being put on."
